

Genpact Completes Acquisition of Axis Risk Consulting

Mumbai-based firm provides risk consulting services to 80 clients globally

New Delhi, India (December 17, 2007) – Genpact (NYSE: G), which manages business processes for companies around the world, announced it has completed its acquisition of Axis Risk Consulting Services Pvt. Ltd., an independent India-based risk consulting firm that provides a wide range of risk assurance services, including internal audit, business performance improvement, Sarbanes-Oxley documentation and compliance testing, and enterprise risk management. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

Formed in September 2004, Axis Risk Consulting serves more than 80 clients in India, North America, Europe and Asia. Axis has offices in Mumbai, Bangalore and New Delhi, India, with client engagements supporting the multinational needs of several global 1000 companies.

Axis will operate as an independent unit of Genpact within its Governance practice. The Axis acquisition strengthens Genpact's financial, planning & analysis offerings.

"The integrated risk and technology solutions we'll be offering our U.S. and European clients as a result of this acquisition will remove a lot of the time, pain and costs associated with governance and risk management," said Genpact President & CEO Pramod Bhasin.

Currently, internal audit tasks require manual inputs, creating high compliance costs, in particular for companies with worldwide operations. With the Axis acquisition, Genpact combines its strengths in process and technology with Axis' experienced audit staff and automated control testing to offer clients a comprehensive internal audit service. Genpact can thus provide clients a single solution allowing them to outsource complex internal audit steps while maintaining overall control of their risk management framework.

Genpact Senior Vice President Anil Nayar stated, "We see tremendous value in supporting the India-based clients of Axis as they grow domestically and internationally, and also look forward to providing our global clients the same level of high-quality internal audit services that Axis is known for."

Axis Risk Consulting Managing Director and Founding Partner Ameet Parikh will continue as managing director of Axis. "We find great synergy between the companies in terms of Genpact's access to global customers and our deep domain knowledge and experience in providing best-in-class risk consulting services. We will now have the opportunity to offer our internal controls outsourcing solution in the global market," he said.
